

Voices for Justice

The Cambridge Public Library Foundation is proud to present Voices for Justice, a free, virtual event series supporting the Cambridge Public Library's world-class Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion (DEI) programming and initiatives.

Voices for Justice will consist of three free, virtual events: two author talks and one screening of the documentary John Lewis: Good Trouble, followed by a roundtable with local luminaries.

Supporting racial and social justice in Cambridge.

Ta-Nehisi Coates

March 23, 2021

7:30 - 8:30pm

The first speaker in our Voices for Justice series is author, journalist, screenwriter, executive producer and professor Ta-Nehisi Coates.

Coates is the author of the bestselling books The Beautiful Struggle, We Were Eight Years in Power, The Water Dancer, and Between the World and Me.

DEI at the Library

Funds raised through Voices for Justice will directly support the Library's DEI work, including:

- Community outreach initiatives like "Liberation Libraries" stocked with free books by diverse authors
- Creative and education opportunities for underserved youth through Science, Technology, Education, Arts and Math (STEAM) programming
- Free public workshops and programming for adults and teens that feature notable authors of color and reflect an array of backgrounds and experiences
- Professional development and training for Library staff

Registration for this exciting event is now open at cplfound.org/voicesforjustice.

Please stay tuned as we announce additional Voices for Justice speakers and events!
